When you are unhappy with your Community Pharmacy:

- Let them know if you want to try an informal resolution to your concerns
- Have confidence in their commitment to resolving your complaint
- Treat staff as you would expect them to treat you, with dignity and respect

Where to complain

It is best to complain to the service first if you are unhappy with your treatment or care. Your Community Pharmacy has a complaints procedure which they will be happy to share with you. This should also be available on the Community Pharmacy website. If you have raised a concern with the Community Pharmacy and you are still unhappy with the outcome, then you can make a formal complaint.
